

Friends and Places together have successfully developed friendship groups for over 100 young people in the last ten years, giving opportunities for everyone, no matter what their differences are, to connect and interact with others with guidance and understanding from support workers.

During this time, a need has been recognised for older adults to have access for this service too. This is highlighted from the many enquires and requests over the years from those who feel they would personally benefit from the charities help, reflecting their frustration in not having an environment to facilitate their needs.

So, Friends and Places Together are embarking on a new venture to resolve this by offering, at first, monthly meetings for those aged 25-40 with differences, ranging from physical, social or just general wellbeing issues to meet others in a comfortable environment where there's no judgement, just acceptance and a warm welcome.

Depending on how many people join us, we could then look at organising activities that have proved popular with our younger group which includes bowling, theatre trips, social evenings at pubs or restaurants and even holidays.
